Change to the Zurich City Association Executive Board: Dominique Zygmont takes over for Andreas Zürcher

After more than 30 years as Managing Director of the Zurich City Association, Andreas Zürcher is handing over the baton to Dominique Zygmont. Zygmont, an experienced association leader and an expert in politics and communication, will be working together with President Milan Prenosil and the more than 1350 member organizations to ensure the success of Zurich's city centre.

Andreas Zürcher has served as Managing Director of the Zurich City Association, the umbrella organisation for Zurich's city centre, since 1987. He helped make Zurich city an attractive location and constantly strove to reach the goals of the association's members from the fields of retail trade, services, tourism and the hotel industry as well as the lifestyle, cultural and event sectors.

On 1 June 2023, Andreas Zürcher retired from his position and handed over the baton to Dominique Zygmont, his successor. Zygmont, who previously held a leading position in a national association, will be a great asset to the Association with his political and communicative knowledge as well as professional experience at home and abroad. He studied at the University of St.Gallen and the Zurich University of Applied Sciences.

Milan Prenosil, President of the Zurich City Association, stated, "The Zurich City Association thanks Andreas Zürcher for his influential work and his more than 30 years of dedication. We are very much looking forward to working with his successor, Dominique Zygmont. Our goals remain the same: together, we will shape the city centre of the future. We are committed to ensuring that the heart of Zurich remains an appealing outstanding experience and shopping destination for people from near and far."
